Salt Marsh Harvest Mouse

A salt marsh harvest mouse's body is about 2.75-3 inches long. Its body is buff to brown. It may also have a dark brown stripe down its back.

A salt marsh harvest mouse's life span is very short; it's only 8-12 months!

The main threats to salt marsh harvest mice are global warming, rising sea levels, and habitat loss.

The salt marsh harvest mouse can swim for over 2 hours. They can drink water saltier than the sea!

Salt marsh harvest mice eat insects, beetles, and amphipods. The salt marsh harvest mouse has a very flexible diet. A salt marsh harvest mouse only exists in a very limited range, its habitat is in its name, salt marshes found in is the San Francisco Bay Area.